

Videoconference Etiquette Guidelines

- Participate in an audio-visual check
 - Start the video conference with a roll call or speak with the host site.
- Mute appropriately
 - Remember to mute when not speaking. This will ensure that video does not switch sites if someone coughs or makes a noise when using voice activated mode. It will also prevent broadcast of such noises to the other sites and acting as a distraction.
 - If you need to move the microphone during the session, mute it first.
- Engage the remote audience
 - Look into the camera occasionally when you are speaking. This helps you to maintain good eye contact with the remote audience.
 - Do not move out of camera range; people should always be able to see you.
- Speak clearly and naturally
 - The microphone will automatically amplify the sound.
 - There is no need to shout. Quiet talkers should sit closer to the mic.
 - Modulate your voice so it is not monotonous.
- Pause between speakers
 - Due to a slight audio delay, pause and wait to receive comments or responses from other sites.
- Reduce background noise
 - Avoid unnecessary tapping, rustling of papers, or side conversations when your site is speaking.
- Enhance video display
 - Avoid rapid movements or erratic hand gestures.
 - Avoid wearing clothing with loud patterns, or solid red or white.
- Professional behaviour
 - Be aware of the start and end times scheduled.
 - Assume that you are visible and can be heard throughout the meeting.
 - Do not monopolize the conversation.
 - Do not interrupt when others are talking.
 - Use respectful language at all times.
 - Focus discussion and questions on the content of the session.
 - Differences of opinion should be conceptual, not personal.
 - Respect individual confidentiality.

- Administrative meetings

- Participants at all sites should be introduced.
- Provide both your name and the site name whenever you respond—until everyone is oriented to one another.

- After the session

- Leave room clean and put videoconference equipment away.
